Inaugural Transnational Law Research Workshop and Student Showcase

Date: 16 March 2016

Time: 8:00am -6:00pm

Location: Mal Nairn Auditorium, Casuarina Campus, School of Law at Charles Darwin University and via web link

The School of Law, Charles Darwin University, Darwin, Australia will hold its First Inaugural Transnational Law Research Workshop and Student Showcase on Wednesday 16th March 2016.

This event brings together academics, students and professionals from our region and globally, to exchange knowledge related to the theme of transnational law. It is part of a programme of events to showcase legal research throughout 2016 from our unique position as a remote and transnational institution, with guest keynote speakers.

Topics include ASEAN development, Investment strategies, transnational crime, legal education and technology, human trafficking, human security, land rights, human rights and environmental protection.

This will be the first time that the School of Law at Charles Darwin University has held such a research event in the top end of Australia at the gateway to Asia. We look forward to welcoming you to the School of Law in Darwin in March 2016 as we move towards transnational cooperation and to highlight the work of our own students and staff.
